Solar System

Our cabin runs 100% on solar energy. This means to be mindful of your electricity usage (especially at night when the sun has gone down). If you are not using a light please turn it off. The biggest power draw is the coffee maker, so usage of that is best during the day.

We do have a percolator and camp stove to use for tea or coffee at night. If you do not pay attention and keep the lights on, run the tv for hours and hours AND make coffee into the evening, you will run out of power. The power will shut off and a loud beeping will occur. You definitely don't want this to happen. This causes damage to our solar system and can seriously damage our battery bank. Please be mindful. We also have some neat led lights with batteries you can use for a camping ambiance :) There is a generator on the entertainment center that you can use for charging phones, laptops etc. Press the power button before plugging something into it.

- Remember to turn off the porch light or other lights when not in use.
- For tea and coffee at night use the percolator

How does solar power work? - The sun shines on the solar panels (located on the roof).

This power from the solar panels is called dc power. It is different than ac power, which is what most American households run off of. The dc power is transferred from the panels into the battery bank where the power is stored.

The battery bank power is connected to an inverter in the cabin which transfers the power from dc to ac, so it can be used for standard electric appliances. Whenever a light is turned on or the water is run, power is pulled from the battery bank. If the sun is shining then the power replenishes into the battery bank pretty quickly. However at night there is no sun, so no power is coming in, which means only reserved power is being used.

Everything in the cabin is as energy efficient as possible. Basic items such as a phone or device charger and laptop can be plugged in. If you need to dry your hair (on a cloudy day), we would suggest doing it in the shower room if possible. Please do not plug in items such as electric griddles or stovetops. This will drain the power very quickly and inefficiently. You are welcome to cook using our outdoor grill, small butane camp stove, or the fire pit.

SHOWER INFO

Shower at Main House (bring your towel)

Do not go behind the house to get to the shower.

Cross the driveway and continue around the front of the house (on the grass).

Then take a left once you cross the front of the house.

You will come to the pack patio.

To the left you will see the door for the shower.

The light is a pull switch in the main area. The light by the shower using a remote which can be found on the table. Dirty towels can be left in the shower or in the bin under the table. There will be shampoo, conditioner and body wash for your use. If you need any other toiletries you can message us and we will probably be able to help you.

Shower at cabin

Plug the outlet in to the outside electric box. Water will begin right away so be ready! Please limit showers to as short as possible as there is a limited water supply. Shower is for use when the sun is out only. The pump uses the solar power to pump the water through. Please note this shower is available from mid May-October

Our Pets

We have two dogs and a very fluffy long haired cat. Our cat likes to venture to the cabin at times so if he shows up, he just wants to hang out and say hi.

Our dogs are super friendly and although they love to bark, they just want to say hi if you happen to see them.

Your Dog

We ask that you keep your pet leashed. This is mostly for their own safety.

We have some great places to walk just around the cabin on the main road. Your dog may smell a deer or two, but walking can make for some great sights.

Please do not let your dog on the couch. If you must sleep with your dog on the bed, please bring your own blanket for them to sleep on.

Dog damages will be charged.

Evidence of Urine - $100

Chewing, clawing - TBD

Extra Hair Clean up - $75

We want to keep dogs welcome in the cabin so please be respectful of the cabin.
